

Awards summary

Winner

- The British Construction Industry Awards 2011, 'Project Under £3m Award'. Sports Canopy, The National Tennis Centre.

The BCIA Judges' citation reads:

'A genuinely new and highly innovative way of covering a tennis court with great potential, which came from the meeting of innovative minds and collaborative teamwork.'

- The Institution of Civil Engineers London, Awards 2011, 'Special Prize'. Sports Canopy, The National Tennis Centre. "The structure is light weight, uses less energy than a conventional air hall and is demountable in 4 days. But what is more impressive is the future opportunity to use this as a low cost solution in communities and for other sports or other uses. The delivery of this interesting and sustainable structure was enabled by a client with vision, a strong project manager and excellent team work by a widely distributed design team."

Finalist

- New London Architecture Awards, 2011.
- Royal Institute of British Architects, London Awards, 2011.
- Institution of Structural Engineers Awards, 2011.
- Builder and Engineer Awards, 2010.

Top left. Sports Canopy project team with LTA client and ICE President.

Top right. George Stowell with Paul Morrell (HM Government Chief Construction Adviser). BCIA Awards.

In the past two years GS-CA has been both winner and finalist in design, engineering and architecture awards and in 2011 won the highly prestigious British Construction Industry Awards, Small Project under £3m award for The Sports Canopy at The National Tennis Centre, London.

